School of Music, Dance and Theatre

ASU Herberger Institute for
Design and the Arts
Arizona State University

The School of Music, Dance and Theatre's popular music concentration is a flexible bachelor's degree program that welcomes 21st-century musicians interested in popular music, music industry studies and entrepreneurship. This includes but is not limited to singers and songwriters, laptop performers, producers, composers, instrumentalists, vocalists and musicians whose practices and playing styles are representative of varied popular music idioms. Students can choose their pathways of study, and their four semesters of applied study include internships and a capstone project.

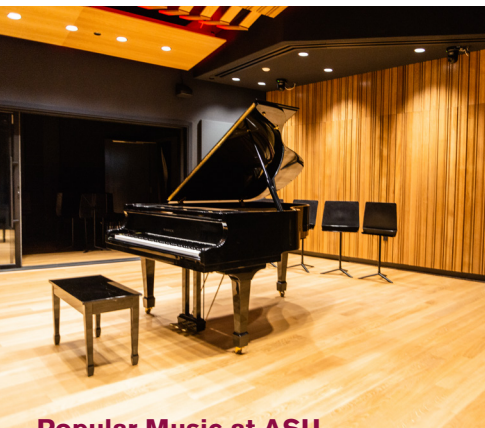

Students attend classes at ASU's new Fusion on First building in downtown Phoenix. The high-tech innovation hub features a suite of world-class recording studios, rehearsal and performances spaces, digital media labs and studios, and access to a plethora of instrumentation and technology to support student success.
