Who are Kaplan International Pathways?

See the Who we are section on our website.

Our university partnerships

Kaplan works in partnership with leading universities in the USA, Canada, UK, Australia and New Zealand – to offer international students routes to studying a degree abroad. Typically, this is via one of two routes:

- Degree admission: expert application and admissions counselling for direct entry to a degree.
- Degree preparation: also known as pathway courses, these are special programmes that help international students meet bachelor’s or master’s degree entry requirements and prepare for university-level study. They’re taught at specialist international study centres, and typically offer guaranteed degree entry when students pass at the required level with good attendance.

UK study centres

Kaplan Pathways has several international colleges in the UK in partnership with highly respected universities. These colleges offer degree preparation courses to help international students gain entry to a bachelor’s or master’s degree.

Most colleges are based on the campus of their affiliate university, giving students access to a wide range of campus facilities and the university experience from day one.

Guidelines for representing our partner universities

We are very privileged to partner with many prestigious universities and want to ensure you have tools to successfully promote each institution. It is our joint responsibility to treat university brands with the utmost care and respect.

The most important aspects of any university promotion are:

1. an accurate portrayal of your relationship with the university
2. correct use of the brand itself

To help you achieve this, we've created a short guide to the basic principles of using a university brand. We hope this helps you and your teams produce materials that showcase Kaplan's partner universities authentically and powerfully.

The list is non-exhaustive so please apply your common sense and own business integrity when making decisions about university promotion.

Do:

- ✓ Use only the official name of the university and program(s) in your promotion
- ✓ For universities in the USA and Canada, there must be a clear distinction that your relationship with the university is through the Kaplan partnership, rather than a direct relationship, i.e. use "in partnership with Kaplan International" after the university name, at least once on your main page about the university.
- ✓ For UK universities, represent your relationship with the university is the international college (or equivalent study centre), which is a partnership between Kaplan International Pathways and the university. The international college's or equivalent centre's pathway courses are students' route to degrees at the university, and clear distinction should be made from the university itself. For TEDI-London, where the main study option is direct degree admission, please follow the US and Canada guidelines immediately above, though using "in partnership with Kaplan International Pathways".
- ✓ For UK universities and international colleges (or equivalent study centres), be sure to present information that's clearly describing one institution (the university) or the other (e.g. college), with added clarifying wording if needed. Details should not be mixed and matched in a concentrated arena that creates risk of ambiguity / confusion.
- ✓ Use a university's rankings, but always provide the source, and try to ensure it is the most recent edition.
- ✓ Use only photos from the following sources:

- your own taken during visits (any featuring recognisable people must have signed media releases)
- those supplied by Kaplan and approved for agent use (see the digital resources packs)
- ✓ Promote the university with accurate and up-to-date information.
- ✓ Double-check everything before you post online! Ask yourself if you are professionally and accurately reflecting the brand and the university's reputation for excellence.

Don't:

- ✗ Present yourself as the university or imply you are acting as the university. For example, using copy like "Welcome to XYZ University" may mislead students.
- ✗ Give false contact details that imply you are based on the university campus or have a university email address.
- ✗ Claim exclusive representation of the university, or that the services you provide for the university are unique.
- ✗ Promise students preferential university admission, or suggest you offer a guaranteed/easy route to the university.
- ✗ Misuse the university logo or misrepresent the university in any way.
- ✗ Use university athletics logos or brands (we do not have a license to use these).
- ✗ Post content that is harmful to the university's brand or negatively impacts the university's reputation.
- ✗ Make any claims or statements for which you do not have evidence. For example, don't say "best in the USA for ABC", unless it is a published ranking of universities or programs.
- ✗ Replicate university materials or web content without permission.
- ✗ Copy, make edits to, or manipulate university or Kaplan-owned photos (or take screenshots from the web for your external use).
- ✗ Promote other universities using a university's photos or content.

Thanks for your efforts and cooperation in promoting Kaplan, its products, programs and university partners!
