A PLACE TO THRIVE

The University of Bristol is a prestigious Russell Group institution where research breaks new ground and students like you can thrive. It's a truly special place that can open the door to your future.

Learn to think differently

At the University of Bristol, you'll be encouraged to become an independent thinker. Innovative curricula and research-led teaching will help you develop the skills you need to thrive after you graduate, in work and in life. As a Russell Group university, Bristol degrees are directly influenced by the research taking place on campus, so you'll benefit from frontline knowledge. In addition, the University has many international research collaborations, and practical experience is integrated into the curricula, so you'll have lots of exciting opportunities available to you. You may even have the chance to work on real-world projects within the business, government and community sectors.

As a Bristol student, you'll be part of a supportive academic community, with advisers that are based in the Centre — and your residence — to support you. You'll have the chance to join a wide range of clubs and societies and meet other students from around the world, so you can expect to enjoy a fantastic student experience as well as a lively social life. The city of Bristol itself is also a very friendly and welcoming place to be a student, so you'll feel at home right away!

EXPLORE YOUR CAMPUS

With world-class facilities, a campus redevelopment project informed by students, and new, state-of-the-art enterprise facilities being developed in the city centre, there has never been a better time to join the University of Bristol.

Investing in your future

At the University's main campus in Clifton, you'll find spaces to study, relax and socialise, such as Senate House. This modern space is home to the SU Loft, as well as a multi-faith prayer room, student meeting and activity rooms, and the student-run Beckford Bar. Elsewhere, the Global Lounge is a comfortable space celebrating different cultures, where you can meet people from around the world and attend a range of exciting cultural events.

The Faculty of Engineering has invested more than £19 million in practical learning facilities, including a propulsion lab, a satellite lab and ground station, and a creative workshop, Hackspace. The Life Sciences building features a five-storey laboratory wing, a state-of-the-art greenhouse, and one of the largest teaching labs in the UK.

The University is also developing a new, world-leading campus focused on digital, business and social innovation. Temple Quarter Enterprise Campus will be a space for students, academics, businesses, partners and the local community to work together.

Life outside your studies

You can get involved with as many clubs and societies as you like at the University of Bristol. There are more than 350 societies and sports clubs to choose from, with everything from football and running, to baking and hot-air ballooning.

→ Students' Union

The students' union has spaces in both the Richmond Building and Senate house, and offers you a mix of study spaces and activity rooms. There are also spaces to relax, unwind and meet new people, such as in the popular Bristol SU Living Room.

← Fantastic libraries

With eight specialist libraries, you'll have all the resources you need to support your studies.

Bristol is home to over 450 parks and green spaces, proportionally more than any other UK city.

WELCOME TO BRISTOL: A DYNAMIC AND WELCOMING CITY

Bristol is the largest city in the south west of England. With a scenic harbour and many cultural activities to enjoy, it's a place where you can belong.

City of opportunities

Bristol has long been known for its spirit of innovation. That's why many pioneering tech and engineering companies have made the city their home. This makes it a great place to find internships and work placements.

International destination

The city isn't just home to businesses — it's where people from all over the world have chosen to settle. It's a multicultural destination where you'll find supermarkets and specialist shops selling ingredients from many nations, as well as all kinds of places of worship, from churches to synagogues, temples and mosques.

- ↑ Enjoy great transport links from Bristol Temple Meads station
- ↗ Relax at Brandon Hill, close to Bristol city centre
- Discover world-class collections at Bristol Museum and Art Gallery

Capital of art

There is a thriving art scene in Bristol, which hosts Europe's largest street art festival, Upfest, every summer. You'll find galleries and museums like Arnolfini and M-Shed, as well as street art from the city's most famous artist: Banksy.

Active lifestyle

It's easy to lead an active lifestyle in Bristol. There are many walking and cycling routes in the city, as well as opportunities to take part in activities like paddleboarding, bubble football and even axe throwing.

DEGREE PREPARATION

Take a pathway course

As an international student, you might need, or benefit from, a pathway course that prepares you for degree study. Sometimes a pathway course is necessary due to differences in national education systems, or to help you improve your academic or language qualifications to the level needed.

You can take the International Foundation Programme, which is a type of pathway course, at the University of Bristol. Expert University staff will guide you in improving your English, academic skills and subject knowledge. When you pass your course at the required level, and with good attendance, you'll be guaranteed entry to your degree! During your pathway course, you'll have access to the University's excellent facilities and resources, effectively making you a full University of Bristol student before you even start your degree.

To date, students from over 50 countries around the world have studied the International Foundation Programme.

STUDENT SUPPORT

Studying abroad is a big step and it might take you out of your comfort zone. But don't worry — if you need support at any stage, the dedicated Student Services team will be able to help you. With their support, you can make the most of your time in the UK and have a fulfilling study abroad experience.

Academic support

Academic support will always be available to you during the International Foundation Programme, helping you to stay on track. You will have a personal academic tutor, and will attend frequent tutorials to support your professional development. You can also access independent study support through the Students' Union's Academic Advice Service, where you can speak to advisers who will be there to help you with any concerns you have related to your studies or your academic experience at university.

Talk to someone

Positive wellbeing and success is an integral part of the International Foundation Programme. The University has a range of services available, including the Student Wellbeing Service, Residential Life teams, Student Counselling Service and Disability Service. You can request support through an easy online process, and the University will connect you with the right help.

Welcome events

Before you start your classes, you can take part in the University of Bristol's Welcome Week. It's a chance for you to get involved in lots of fun and exciting events, meet new people, make friends and be introduced to student life in Bristol. Many of these events are free, and other events will continue to be organised after Welcome Week has finished. We strongly recommend that you take part in the fun — it will help you have the best possible start to your International Foundation Programme.

MEET IAN

Ian from Kenya is on his path to a bachelor's degree in Civil Engineering.

'Before coming to study here, I had never been to the UK. I wanted to find a study destination that was similar to my home city of Kisumu, Kenya, and Bristol seemed perfect. It's not big like a capital city, so you're never too far from the city centre and it's easy to walk everywhere. I love to wander around Bristol and admire the old architecture — every building has a story to tell, and exploring the city gives me a sense of comfort and peace.

I chose the University of Bristol because I believe that you need to study somewhere that not only builds you academically, but also challenges you to be a better person. What good is education if you can't be someone who is compassionate and practises empathy towards their fellow human beings?

On the International Foundation Programme, I'm encouraged to be independent, to learn how to reason logically, and to reach conclusions on my own. It's this kind of critical thinking that prepares you for university, and for life.

After I graduate with my degree, I want to go back home and implement what I've learnt so that I can give back to the society that has given so much to me. I want to use my education in Engineering to tackle issues like flooding and drought that affect my country so deeply.

My personal mantra is a quote from Gandhi: "In a gentle way, you can shake the world". I believe that everyone should stand up and be counted — if you have the chance to study abroad, then you should always remember that you are living someone's dream. It's important to make the most of what you have, and to never be too hard on yourself.

This is my path so far.'
